Are you looking to create a custom video conferencing environment for your business? Need help selecting the right equipment and integrating it into your conference room space? InterCall can help with our Conference Room Integration services. Working in partnership with SPL Integrated Solutions, a firm that has successfully implemented enterprise-wide, real-time collaborative systems at Fortune 1000 corporations, educational institutions and government agencies, we can develop customized systems and services that allow people to connect for working sessions and formal presentations no matter where they are located.

Integrating the Right Communication System

In this era of global instant communication, a challenge for today's organization is to use the most cost-effective communication system to improve its productivity. There is no need to make a video call for a ten-minute meeting, but for the President's company-wide presentation to be effective, you'll need the visual impact of an enterprise-wide videoconference system. InterCall and SPL will partner with you to make your meetings and events more productive. And, as an added benefit, you'll be more productive because you're spending less time in an airport and more time in your office.

Unmatched Engineering Expertise

Today's integrated systems require a unique combination of AV and IT expertise and experience. As the leading integrated solutions provider, our partner, SPL, has some of the best AV engineers, project managers and technicians in the country. Over two-thirds of SPL employees have technical training. SPL has integrated systems at venues ranging from sport arena and casinos to museums and theme parks – just imagine what we'll be able to do for your board room! See below for some examples of past installations: For additional information about InterCall's Conference Room Integration program, please visit www.inview.net or contact your sales representative.
